

CLIENT PROFILE

The Jones Lang LaSalle is a commercial office building located on Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, D.C.

Stuart Dean was hired to perform façade and metal refinishing on the building. Stuart Dean partnered with Hitt Contracting on this job, having worked with them to restore and maintain buildings across the Washington, D.C. area for nearly 25 years.

THE CHALLENGE

The Jones Lang LaSalle Building was more than 25 years old and the exterior façade was in need of cleaning.

The building was occupied during the restoration process. In addition, a ground floor retail establishment needed to remain fully open and accessible while the project was underway.

THE SOLUTION

Stuart Dean completed limestone cleaning, re-caulking, PPG Corafon painting, glass polishing, travertine filling, stainless steel lacquering and mullion replacement on the building's façade.

THE BENEFITS

Stuart Dean technicians were able to successfully restore the Jones Lang LaSalle building's exterior to its original beauty without undue disruption of day-to-day activities.
